Project Description:

This project will replace the outdated incandescent lighting systems in the museum's primary gallery for special exhibitions. The current system was installed in 1968 and is still in use. The full replacement will encompass 165 – 395 fixtures. Aside from being wasteful of energy, the current system is also increasingly difficult to maintain and presents several safety concerns. This LED conversion is just one component of the museum's long-term plan for energy savings and sustainability, which will eventually include further LED conversion and a roof replacement.
